World's largest electronics sourcing show opens today with 6,500 booths

Co-located Startup Launchpad showcases consumer electronics startups

HONG KONG, Oct. 11, 2017 – Global Sources Electronics, the world's largest electronics sourcing show, opens today at Hong Kong's AsiaWorld-Expo. Held in two phases, Consumer Electronics and Mobile Electronics, the combined events feature more than 6,500 booths of the world's latest electronics products.

Running from Oct. 11 to 14, Consumer Electronics includes 3,700 booths of home, outdoor and auto electronics, and features computer and peripherals, VR and gaming, components, and smart living products. It will also include product launch, experience and demo zones to highlight innovative products and technologies.

The Mobile Electronics phase will take place from Oct. 18 to 21 with a focus on the latest smartphones, tablets, AR/VR, wearables and mobile accessories.

Tommy Wong, President of Global Sources Electronics Group, said: "We are committed to nurturing innovation and showcasing new and innovative products. The show is an important platform for technologies and idea exchange."

Product launch area to highlight new products and technologies

The show will feature a Launch Zone showcasing cutting-edge products. It is complemented by a Product Gallery and an Experience Zone where attendees can get hands-on experience with new technologies.

Other highlights of the show include:

- An expanded VR & Gaming Pavilion with an experience zone where attendees can try out exciting gaming devices including AR guns, VR race cars and mixed reality devices.
- Asia's largest Outdoor Electronics Pavilion showcases electric personal transporters, drones, robots and action cameras.
- Smart Living Pavilion covers smart security, lighting, entertainment, appliances and gadgets. It also features Hong Kong's largest collection of security products for home, commercial and public use.
- New product zones highlight smart driving products, eBikes, voice-activated speakers and devices, and batteries.
- Next-Gen Components Zone gives buyers a closer look into what's going to be inside new tech products for automobiles, drones, robotics, smart home security systems and wearables.
- Hong Kong's largest computer and peripherals, and auto electronics pavilions.

Asia's largest consumer electronics startup event

Startup Launchpad spans both phases of the Global Sources Electronics show with 240 booths featuring new products in categories including smart home, sports tech, drones, STEAM products and other IoT devices. Buyers will be among the first to see some of the world's most revolutionary electronics ideas. Startup Launchpad also includes conference programs covering investment and fundraising, product design and development, and manufacturing and distribution. More information is available at <http://www.launchpadhk.com>.

A new Startup Investors Forum will be held on Oct. 12 where industry experts will share insights and lead thought-provoking discussions on startup investing trends, strategies and case studies. The Forum is an excellent networking opportunity for angel investors, venture capitalists, legal and accounting professionals, and business owners looking for startup investments.

Services for online and Amazon sellers

A wide range of services will help online and Amazon sellers source more effectively. This includes products from 900 exhibitors that accept small orders and seminars featuring online retail experts.

Global Sources Electronics is expected to attract buyers from more than 140 countries and territories including purchasing decision makers from ADI Systems, Brookstone, Carrefour, Darty Asia, Eurogroup, Fossil, Groupe Batteur, Hammacher Schlemmer, Imaginarium, Jasco Products, Krusell International, Lexibook, Merlion, NXP Semiconductors, Panasonic, QD Cellular, Real SB Warenhaus, Sears, Target Australia, The Home Depot, The Source, Verbatim, WHSmith, ZipKord and many more.

The GlobalSources.com app enables buyers to shortlist exhibitors; find booths, take pictures and then follow exhibitors after the show. The At the Show newsletter provides daily reports and live videos on the hottest products.
